Developing Leaders Through Effective Mentoring

We have panelists from Business and Education to discuss Mentorship for professionals and students alike. Part of TBTLA's mission is to develop future leaders. This presentation aims to define mentorship and discuss various programs in both the corporate and classroom setting with the objective of identifying practices that can be employed in your organization.

Mary-Helen Horne, PwC Market Administrative Leader - Mary-Helen is the Market Administrative Leader for PwC's Tampa Firm Business Services, directing all administrative and site operations and leading our community giving and service efforts.

Dr. Harold Webb, University of Tampa Associate Professor, Information and Technology Management - Harold Webb specializes in research on information technology, learning and enterprise systems. His interests include academic-industry collaboration, the adoption of advanced information technologies in organizations and the impact of information technology on learning.

Ravi Seepersad, Bisk Chief Strategy Officer and General Counsel - Ravi Seepersad previously served as Bisk's Associate General Counsel and Corporate Counsel from 2007 to 2013. As Chief Strategy Officer, Mr. Seepersad is responsible for short and long term strategic planning initiatives with the dynamically changing higher education landscape.

TBTLA brings to you a topic that is relevant and provocative. We hope you enjoy the presentation and bring your questions and challenges to this next era in computing.
